MSTR

Strategy Inc

$85.34

▼ -9.34%

HOLD

This week's macro backdrop — sticky 3.4% core PCE and a Fed signaling it may hike rather than cut — is precisely the higher-for-longer rate environment that punishes leveraged crypto bets like MSTR, explaining its -9.3% week. The HOLD reflects a still-constructive long-term crypto-policy tailwind (GENIUS Act, state Bitcoin reserves) against a hostile short-term rate and risk-appetite setup. Patience over panic-selling near the 52-week low.

NFLX

Netflix, Inc.

$72.72

▲ +1.22%

HOLD

With consumer spending still robust per this week's PCE data, Netflix's subscription + ad model is well positioned even as inflation pressures discretionary budgets. The HOLD is driven by the July 16 earnings catalyst landing inside the next three weeks — too close to add aggressively or to sell calls. The ~$114 analyst target frames meaningful long-term upside from a near-52-week-low entry.

NVDA

NVIDIA
Corporation

$197.93

▼ -0.54%

BUY

This week's risk-on tape, Iran de-escalation, and blowout semiconductor earnings reinforce the AI capex super-cycle that drives NVDA. The BUY explicitly weighs that secular tailwind against a real political headwind — tightening U.S. chip-export rules and Warren's NVIDIA inquiry — which is why we add on dips rather than chase strength. With the stock below its high and earnings ahead, the risk/reward favors accumulation.

An improving geopolitical picture (Iran resolution in sight) and resilient consumer spending underpin the broad market, even as the Fed's higher-for-longer stance caps the pace of gains. The BUY/keep-DCA call leans on the index's diversification to absorb the inflation and tariff cross-currents that whip individual names like MSTR. Dollar-cost averaging neutralizes the timing risk created by an uncertain rate path.

Watchlist

MSFT ▲ +1.43%

Microsoft Corporation

Microsoft sits near its 52-week low ($349.20) and well below the ~$561 average analyst target, even as Azure AI and Copilot adoption keep growing and operating margins run ~46.8%. A recent Xbox price hike weighed on sentiment, but the AI franchise is now larger than some legacy businesses. Watch for stabilization above $365 as a quality-on-sale entry.

QQQ ▲ +3.11%

Invesco QQQ Trust

QQQ jumped +3.11% on the week and is pressing its 52-week high ($748.65) on renewed AI optimism and strong semis. It offers concentrated mega-cap tech exposure if the club wants more growth tilt than VOO. Watch for entries on pullbacks toward the $705 support rather than chasing the breakout.

META ▼ -0.22%

Meta Platforms, Inc.

Meta is ~30% below its 52-week high ($796.25) amid AI-talent-departure and heavy capex concerns, with revenue still up ~22% YoY and an ~$841 average analyst target signaling large upside. The pullback is sentiment-driven, not fundamental. Monitor for a base near $520 (the 52-week low) before adding.

DIA ▲ +0.63%

SPDR Dow Jones Industrial Average ETF Trust

DIA recently hit a fresh 52-week high and offers blue-chip value exposure (financials ~27%, industrials ~17%) that benefits from the rotation into cyclical and small/value seen this week (Caterpillar +4% one session). It's a lower-volatility diversifier vs. the tech-heavy book. Consider as a defensive ballast if inflation forces a value rotation.

Key Insights This Week

Sticky 3.4% core PCE punishes leveraged MSTR; favors broad index VOO/QQQ
NVDA profitable +55% — accumulate dips into the Aug 26 earnings catalyst
Hold NFLX through July 16 earnings; no calls inside the window

Covered Call Strategy

Weekly Options Income on Club Holdings

What Is a Covered Call?

A covered call means selling someone the right to buy 100 of your shares at a set strike by a set date. You collect the premium today no matter what. If the stock stays below the strike, you keep the shares and the full premium. If it rises above the strike, your shares get called away at that price — you still profit, just capped at the strike. You must own at least 100 shares per contract.

This Week's IV Environment: Implied volatility has cooled from the spring's geopolitical spike now that a U.S.-Iran resolution is in sight and indices are pressing record highs — broad-market IV (VOO/SPY) is on the lower end, while single names like MSTR and NVDA still carry elevated IV ahead of their August earnings. IMPORTANT: the club currently holds fewer than 100 shares of MSTR (7), NFLX (10) and NVDA (6), so single-contract covered calls are not yet executable on those names — the plays below are educational/positioning targets for when share counts reach 100, except where noted.

Plays This Week

VOO

SKIP

Vanguard S&P 500 ETF · $684.66

The club holds only 24.6 VOO shares — below the 100 needed for one contract. Setup is otherwise ideal (no earnings, near highs, ~3% OTM). Keep accumulating toward 100 shares to unlock this low-risk income.

Watch for: Once VOO holdings reach 100 shares, sell the ~$705 call ~35–40 DTE for ~$550 premium (~7.7% annualized) in any low-IV, range-bound stretch.

■ No earnings; macro events only (July 2 jobs report, ongoing inflation prints)

NVIDIA Corporation · $197.93

Two blockers: (1) the club owns only 6 NVDA shares, far below 100; and (2) NVDA is a BUY-and-accumulate name we don't want capped — selling calls would cut off upside in our most profitable position (+55%). A pre-Aug-26 expiry also risks IV crush around earnings.

Watch for: Revisit only if the club ever reaches 100 NVDA shares AND shifts to an income posture. The best entry is typically the week AFTER the Aug 26 earnings once IV crushes and a new range forms.

■ Q2 FY27 earnings on Aug 26, 2026 — a 35-45 DTE call would span the report; IV is elevated and will spike into it

Strategy Inc · $85.34

Three blockers: (1) the club owns only 7 MSTR shares; (2) Aug 4 earnings falls inside any 25–45 DTE window — never sell calls within ~3 weeks of earnings; and (3) at $85 vs. a $323 cost basis, any strike near a realistic OTM level sits far below breakeven, so assignment would lock in a large loss.

Watch for: Not a covered-call candidate while underwater. Re-evaluate only if/when MSTR recovers above the ~$323 cost basis with 100+ shares held — then high IV could fund attractive premiums.

■ Q2 2026 earnings on Aug 4, 2026 — a 25–45 DTE covered call would span the report

Netflix, Inc. · $72.72

Hard rule: earnings on July 16 is well within 3 weeks of June 30, so no covered call. Separately, the club holds only 10 NFLX shares (need 100), and at $72.72 vs. a $110.63 cost basis any realistic strike is below breakeven — assignment would crystallize a loss.

Watch for: Reassess after the July 16 report. If the club accumulates 100+ shares and the stock recovers toward the cost basis, post-earnings IV normalization could create a covered-call entry.

Key Insights This Week

- No covered calls are executable now — every holding is under 100 shares
- Skip NFLX on the rule: July 16 earnings is inside the 3-week window
- Build VOO to 100 shares to unlock the cleanest low-IV income play

Club Benchmarking

What Winning Investment Clubs Do Differently

Clubs Researched This Week

BetterInvesting / NAIC National Network

Strategy: 75-year-old commonsense Stock Study method — standardized 5-year EPS and sales-growth analysis and a documented buy/hold/sell decision before any vote.

Tools: BetterInvesting Stock Selection Guide (SSG) + online portfolio management resources

Takeaway: A required written, data-driven study before every vote removes emotion — exactly the discipline that would have kept the club from chasing MSTR at its highs.

Black Investment Club @ Harvard Business School (with AASU)

Strategy: Builds a pipeline into public markets, PE, VC and alternatives via corporate partnerships; runs a flagship annual conference with alumni and professionals.

Tools: Corporate-sponsor network + annual conference programming for deal flow and mentorship

Takeaway: Partnerships and a signature annual event create deal flow, mentorship and recruitment — a model FI Community can mirror through Atlanta event tabling.

HBCU / Gen Z Black Investor Cohorts

Strategy: Peer-led financial-literacy and investing groups capitalizing on the documented rise in Gen Z Black investors, focused on real estate, stocks and long-term wealth-building.

Tools: Social-media-native education + simple shared trackers and curriculum

Takeaway: Community-values alignment and peer education drive engagement among the fastest-growing investor demographic — a direct recruitment lane for FI Community.

Strategies to Adopt

Written investment thesis requirement (NAIC-style Stock Study lite)	Difficulty: Low	Impact: High
---	-----------------	--------------

- | |
|---|
| 1. Create a 1-page template: ticker, thesis, 5-year growth, risks, price target, time horizon, cost-basis vs. price |
| 2. Require submission 48 hours before any buy/sell vote |
| 3. Archive every thesis in a shared Google Drive for quarterly review |

Sector ownership assignments	Difficulty: Low	Impact: High
------------------------------	-----------------	--------------

- | |
|---|
| 1. Assign each member 1–2 sectors (Tech, Comm Services, Index/Macro, Crypto) to monitor monthly |
| 2. Sector lead gives a 5-minute update each meeting tied to the week's macro/political news |
| 3. Rotate assignments every 6 months for cross-training |

Quarterly cost-basis & thesis-review meeting	Difficulty: Medium	Impact: High
--	--------------------	--------------

- | |
|--|
| 1. Schedule a dedicated quarterly session separate from regular meetings |
|--|

	2. Review each holding against its original thesis AND current P/L vs. cost basis
	3. Vote on rebalancing/trimming with full quorum (e.g., review the MSTR underwater thesis)
Key Insights This Week
	Top clubs win on process, not picks — build the written-thesis framework first
	ESG/community-values alignment is FI Community's strongest recruitment hook
	Quarterly cost-basis reviews catch underwater theses like MSTR before they deepen

Side Income & Business Moves

Specific Opportunities This Week

Opportunities This Week

High-Yield Savings Account (HYSA) for club reserves

Fixed Income Effort: Low Time Sensitive

Up to ~4.15% APY (top June 2026 accounts per Bankrate)

Potential Return

How to start: Open a top-rate online HYSA (e.g., CIT Platinum Savings, which tops out for $5,000+ balances and charges no monthly fee). Move club operating cash and emergency reserves online in ~10 minutes.

Treasury Bills via TreasuryDirect

Fixed Income Effort: Low Time Sensitive

~3–5% annualized (4-week to 1-year T-bills)

Potential Return

How to start: Create a free TreasuryDirect.gov account and buy 4-week or 13-week T-bills at auction (minimum $100). With the Fed holding at 3.50–3.75% and a hike on the table, short-bill yields stay attractive and carry zero credit risk.

Digital products / templates (investment-club starter kit)

Digital Product Effort: Medium

Recurring micro-revenue; digital templates rank among top 2026 passive-income earners

Potential Return

How to start: Package the club's bylaws, contribution tracker and thesis template into a downloadable kit and list it on Gumroad/Stan Store for $27–47. Zero inventory; created once, sold repeatedly.

Dividend Reinvestment (DRIP) on VOO

Compounding Effort: Low

Accelerates compounding on the 24.6-share VOO core position

Potential Return

How to start: Turn on automatic DRIP for VOO in the brokerage so quarterly distributions auto-buy fractional shares. Set-and-forget compounding with no monthly action.

News Hooks → Action Items

■ Fed holds at 3.50–3.75% on June 17 with a possible HIKE still on the table after 3.4% core PCE

Short-term yields (HYSA, T-bills) stay elevated — lock in idle club cash now while rates are high

Action: Move club reserves from a 0% checking account into a top HYSA or 4-week T-bill this week

■ Core inflation hit a 3-year high (3.4%) while consumer spending stayed robust

Resilient spending favors consumer/streaming names; sticky inflation favors short-duration fixed income over long bonds

Action: Keep new cash in short T-bills, not long-duration bond funds, until the rate path clears

Key Insights This Week

Idle club cash at 0% is a silent drag — HYSA is a 10-minute fix

Short T-bills beat long bond funds with zero credit risk now

A starter-kit digital product is launchable this week at near-zero cost
