Stocks					Analysis
MSTR	Strategy Inc	$85.86	▼ -8.79%	HOLD	This week's risk-on rally lifted indexes but NOT MSTR, because its decline is crypto- and balance-sheet-specific rather than macro. With the Fed on hold (steady rates remove a tailwind for speculative crypto) and dilution fears front-and-center, the prudent move is to hold an already-small 7-share stake through the Aug 4 report rather than realize a deep loss at the lows.
NFLX	Netflix, Inc.	$72.62	▲ +1.09%	HOLD

					This week's rotation OUT of mega-cap AI created the dip — a gift for long-term buyers, not a thesis-breaker. With the Fed steady (stable rates support growth-stock valuations) and AI capex still booming, buying weakness in the sector leader is the right move; the only caution is the Aug 26 earnings and ongoing U.S.-China chip-export politics.
NVDA	NVIDIA Corporation	$198.6	▼ -0.20%	BUY
VOO	Vanguard S&P 500 ETF	$685.38	▲ +1.73%	BUY	This week's broad rally and the U.S.-Iran de-escalation reinforce why a diversified index beats stock-picking for core money. Even with PCE inflation elevated and the Fed on hold, broad U.S. equities have absorbed the shock — so the boring, consistent DCA plan continues to be the highest-probability path to wealth.

MSFT ▲ +1.29%

Microsoft Corporation

Microsoft trades at $370.16, well off its 52-week high of $555.45 after unveiling price hikes for Xbox consoles, adding to concerns that companies are passing rising costs on to consumers. Out of roughly 97 analysts covering the stock, most rate MSFT as a 'Strong Buy' or 'Buy,' with an average price target in the range of $589 and $592 — large upside. The pullback is a watch-for-entry opportunity below $360; AI/Azure and a steady-rate backdrop support the long-term case.

QQQ ▲ +3.34%

Invesco QQQ Trust

QQQ (the Nasdaq-100 ETF, tech-heavy growth) jumped 3.34% this week to $734.32, just under its 52-week high of $748.65 — the strongest mover on our watchlist as tech rebounded. It's a cleaner, diversified way to own the AI theme than single stocks. Consider it as a complement to VOO for members wanting more growth tilt; add on dips rather than at all-time highs.

META ▼ -0.25%

Meta Platforms, Inc.

Meta is $556.29, down sharply from its 52-week high of $796.25 amid AI-talent-departure worries and a Trump threat of 100% tariffs weighing on sentiment. META's current price target is $840.60 — substantial implied upside. Watch for stabilization above the $520 52-week-low/support zone before an entry; rising Black and Gen Z digital ad consumption is a long-term tailwind.

DIA ▲ +0.64%

SPDR Dow Jones Industrial Average ETF Trust

DIA (tracks the 30-stock Dow, tilted to established value/industrial names) rose 0.64% to $521.84, near its 52-week high of $526.57. It benefited from this week's rotation into value and industrials — the Dow Jones Industrial Average added 148.01 points, led by a nearly 4% gain in Caterpillar. A useful diversifier if the value-over-growth rotation persists, but lower growth potential than VOO/QQQ; monitor rather than rush in.

Key Insights This Week

Buy the AI dip: accumulate NVDA near $195–$200, keep DCA into VOO

Hold MSTR and NFLX through earnings — don't sell at lows

Rotation into small-caps and value is the week's real story

Covered Call Strategy

Weekly Options Income on Club Holdings

What Is a Covered Call?

A covered call means selling someone the right to buy 100 of your shares at a set 'strike price' by a set expiration date, in exchange for cash today called the 'premium.' Key terms: STRIKE PRICE = the price your shares could be sold at; PREMIUM = the cash you collect upfront and keep no matter what; DTE = Days To Expiration; OTM = Out of The Money (a strike above today's price, so there's room to rise); annualized yield = the premium scaled to a full-year rate for comparison. If the stock stays below the strike, you keep your shares AND the premium. If it rises above the strike, your shares get 'called away' (sold) at the strike — you still profit, just capped.

This Week's IV Environment: IV (Implied Volatility — the market's expectation of how much a stock will move; higher IV = richer option premiums) is mixed in late June 2026. After major geopolitical shocks (the Iran conflict) and an AI-stock rotation, single-name volatility is elevated on names like MSTR and NVDA even as broad-index volatility eases on the U.S.-Iran de-escalation. IMPORTANT CLUB NOTE: a covered call requires owning at least 100 shares per contract. FI Community currently owns 7 MSTR, 10 NFLX, 6 NVDA, and ~24.6 VOO — below 100 shares each — so the plays below are EDUCATIONAL setups to learn the mechanics now and execute once a position reaches 100 shares.

Plays This Week

NVDA

SELL CALL

NVIDIA Corporation · $198.6
No earnings until Aug 26, 2026 — comfortably outside the 3-week no-call window. Elevated single-name IV after the AI rotation means richer premiums; stock is consolidating after a ~23% drop from its May peak.

Expiry: 2026-07-31 · 31 days · Timing: If/when the club holds 100 NVDA shares, target the July 31 $210 call (~5.7% OTM, 31 DTE) for ~$6.50 premium. Today the club holds only 6 shares, so paper-trade this setup.
Historical: AI-leader calls at ~5–6% OTM with elevated IV have historically expired worthless a majority of the time, but NVDA can trend hard — treat the cap risk as real.

■ Catalyst: Q2 FY2027 earnings on Aug 26, 2026 (about 8 weeks away — ample room for a 25–45 day trade)

VOO

SELL CALL

Vanguard S&P 500 ETF · $685.38
ETFs have no single-company earnings risk, so there is no earnings blackout. IV is low (broad-index volatility eased on the Iran de-escalation), making this a steady, low-yield income setup rather than a high-premium one.

Expiry: 2026-07-31 · 31 days · Timing: With only ~24.6 VOO shares, this is a learning setup. At 100 shares, the July 31 $705 call (~2.9% OTM) collects ~$4.80; consider a slightly higher strike to avoid capping VOO's core-holding upside.
Historical: Broad-index ETF calls at ~3% OTM are the most consistent 'expire worthless' performers, but low IV means modest premium.

■ Catalyst: No earnings — only broad macro events (jobs report July 2, CPI/PCE prints). Near 52-week high of $699.15.

Expiry:

2026-07-31 · 31 days ·

Timing:

Club holds 7 shares, so this is illustrative. The eye-popping ~69% annualized yield comes from extreme IV; a 7–8% OTM strike ($92) at least leaves room for a bounce while collecting a fat premium.

Historical:

Very high-IV crypto-proxy calls show wide outcomes; the huge premium reflects huge risk in both directions.

■ Catalyst: Q2 earnings Aug 4, 2026; Bitcoin price and any dilution news are the real day-to-day catalysts.

NFLX

SKIP

Netflix, Inc. · $72.62

Earnings on July 16 are within 3 weeks of June 30 — our rule prohibits writing calls before earnings. A post-report gap could blow past any strike. (The club also holds only 10 shares, far under the 100 needed.)

Watch for:

Re-evaluate the trading day after July 16. Post-earnings IV crush often creates a cleaner covered-call entry once the event risk is gone.

■ Q2 2026 earnings on July 16, 2026 — only ~16 days away, INSIDE the 3-week no-call window.

Key Insights This Week

Club Benchmarking

What Winning Investment Clubs Do Differently

Clubs Researched This Week

BetterInvesting / NAIC National Network

Strategy: Stock Selection Guide (SSG) methodology — a standardized study of ~5 years of sales and EPS (Earnings Per Share — a company's profit divided by its shares) growth required before any buy vote, removing emotion from decisions.

Tools: BetterInvesting Stock Selection Guide tool + online community and 90-day free trial

Takeaway: A formal written study before every purchase has, per BetterInvesting, empowered hundreds of thousands of individual investors and stops impulse buying.

Black Investment Club @ Harvard Business School (BIC)

Strategy: Builds pipelines into venture capital, private equity, and public markets; partners with the African American Student Union (AASU) on a flagship annual conference connecting alumni, students, and practitioners.

Tools: Alumni mentorship network + annual conference programming

Takeaway: Pairing investing education with a recurring signature event drives recruitment, retention, and real career/deal access — a model FI Community can mirror in Atlanta.

HBCU Campus Finance Clubs (Spelman/Howard model)

Strategy: Sector-ownership with quarterly rebalancing — each member 'owns' a sector and presents updates; some add an ESG/community-impact screen aligning returns with community values.

Tools: Google Sheets portfolio tracker + free Yahoo Finance / Morningstar screeners

Takeaway: Assigning sector accountability deepens member expertise, and a community-values screen boosts engagement among Black and Gen Z investors.

Strategies to Adopt

Written investment thesis requirement (NAIC SSG-style)

Difficulty: Low Impact: High

1. Create a 1-page thesis template: ticker, thesis, key risks, price target, time horizon, cost-basis impact
2. Require submission 48 hours before any buy/sell vote
3. Archive every thesis in a shared Google Drive to review against actual results

Sector ownership assignments

Difficulty: Low Impact: High

1. Assign each member 1–2 sectors (e.g., Tech=NVDA/MSFT, Comm Services=NFLX/META) to monitor monthly
2. Sector lead gives a 5-minute update each meeting
3. Rotate assignments every 6 months for cross-training

Signature recurring community event (BIC model)

Difficulty: Medium Impact: High

1. Launch a quarterly 'FI Community Wealth Night' tied to an Atlanta venue or partner
2. Invite a local Black financial advisor or HBCU club as co-host for reach

3. Use the event for member recruitment and to showcase the club's track record

Key Insights This Week

Top clubs win on process and a written thesis — not hot stock picks

Sector ownership creates accountability and member expertise fast

A signature recurring event drives recruitment and partner deals

Side Income & Business Moves

Specific Opportunities This Week

Opportunities This Week

High-Yield Savings Account (HYSA)

Fixed Income Effort: Low Time Sensitive

Up to ~4.10–5.00% APY (Annual Percentage Yield — yearly interest earned) as of late June 2026

Potential Return

How to start: Open an online HYSA. Bankrate and Fortune listings show top accounts paying up to ~4.15–5.00% APY. Move the club's idle operating cash and any emergency reserve from a 0% checking account — takes about 15 minutes.

Treasury Bills via TreasuryDirect

Fixed Income Effort: Low

Yields tracking the Fed's 3.5%–3.75% range, with zero credit risk (backed by the U.S. government)

Potential Return

How to start: Create a free account at TreasuryDirect.gov and buy a 4-week or 13-week T-bill at auction; minimum $100. Good home for cash the club won't deploy for a couple of months.

Digital Product: Investment Club Starter Kit

Digital Product Effort: Medium

$27–$47 per sale; near-zero cost to create and infinite to resell

Potential Return

How to start: Package the club's own templates (bylaws, contribution tracker, 1-page thesis template, meeting agenda) into a PDF and list on Gumroad or Stan Store. Rising retail/Gen Z investing interest in 2026 means strong search demand for 'how to start an investment club.'

Dividend Reinvestment (DRIP) on VOO

Compounding Effort: Low

Automatically reinvests VOO dividends into fractional shares, accelerating compounding

Potential Return

How to start: Toggle on automatic DRIP (Dividend Reinvestment Plan) for VOO in the brokerage so every dividend buys more shares with no manual effort.

News Hooks → Action Items

■ Fed holds rates at 3.5%–3.75% for a third straight meeting

Cash yields near 4–5% are still available, but once the Fed eventually cuts, HYSA and T-bill rates will fall — lock in / deploy idle cash now

Action: Move club operating cash into an HYSA or short T-bill this week

■ PCE inflation hit a ~3-year high while consumer spending stayed robust

Resilient spending favors subscription and consumer-platform businesses — reinforces the long-term NFLX and META theses

Action: Frame a content piece on 'why your subscriptions are an investing signal'

Key Insights This Week

Idle checking cash earns 0% — an HYSA is a 15-minute fix

Lock in ~4–5% cash yields before the Fed eventually cuts

Turn the club's own templates into a $27–$47 digital product
